Use CalliPay's timed—representation strategies to better manage your returns and enhance your recovery efforts

Others may process returns, but CalliPay utilizes criteria based on recovery objectives to provide you the highest rate of clearance. To assist in enhancing your recovery efforts, CalliPay employs the use of “Timed— representation,” a calculated recovery strategy, as an essential part of managing your returns.

Here's how it works:

Timing is everything - Representments are scheduled after a letter is sent to the Payer to inform them the check will be represented on a specific date. While the length of the replenishment period is your choice, it is critical that enough time is provided to allow the payer to make arrangements to have sufficient funds in the account to cover the check.

You decide the rest - Representments can be scheduled to occur on certain days of the month, such as after common pay days to increase the chance of success.

It's Versatile - The representments are initiated automatically, but we give you the ability to change or even cancel a representment if other payment arrangements are made.

Timed Representation can be used with all related CalliPay Recovery solutions.
